25 CALENDAR OF SITTINGS

The Calendar of Sittings for the Second and Third Term

A Message from the Speaker

The National Assembly started 2018 with the 24th Conference of Speakers and Presiding Officers of the Commonwealth (CSPOC) held at the Savoy Hotel from the 8th to the 12th of January. Over 52 Speakers, Presiding Officers and their Clerks were in attendance. After four days of intense deliberations the Conference concluded with a Post Conference Tour where our visitors were treated to a tour of the beautiful landscape of South Mahe. The National Assembly was hailed for organizing a great event and I am really grateful for the efforts the Staff put in. Mr. Terry Romain was exceptional as he took over the organization with eagerness and determination to host our friends from the Commonwealth, sorting out accommodations, venue and the program whilst most of us were busy with the Budget debate.

End of January the former Speaker resigned, sending the Secretariat for the first time in a transition mode. This event also impacted on our calendar as we had to move the opening of the first meeting for 2018 forward. During that time the Secretariat worked extremely hard and in the most professional manner to keep the National Assembly going. MNAs continued with their duties unhindered. At the time, I felt proud to be at the helm of such a great team with one vision to rise above everything and keep the institution going. We forged ahead and even started tackling a new structure in line with our vision to turn the National Assembly into a professional, efficient and apolitical institution.

At the beginning of March history was again made when for the first time in the third Republic the Deputy Speaker was elevated to the office of the Speaker. We saw the swearing in of the new Deputy Speaker, Hon. Ahmed Afif and the new Member for Anse Boileau Hon. Philip Arissol. The National Assembly hit the road running with the Message on the State of the Nation by the President on the same day, and from then we have never looked back.

The work and representations of MNAs both at the local and international level has never been as prominent as now. All members are active on different committees, engaged in their respective districts and are well represented on overseas missions.

As the National Assembly celebrates 25 years of its existence, preparations are underway to organize different activities to mark this auspicious occasion which will culminate with the launching of the revised Standing Orders on the 30th of July.

We are looking at 2018 as a year full of challenges, busy in terms of the work load, but one year that will go down in our history where members of the Secretariat have risen and delivered beyond expectations. I wish the Staff of the secretariat courage and the MNAs success in their duties.

Hon. Nicholas Prea

Speaker of the National Assembly

Interview with the Speaker

Hon. Nicholas Prea is the first Deputy Speaker to be elected to Speakership in the history of the Third Republic. Our National Assembly has gone through quite some historical feats in the past few months. Parlman caught up with the Speaker to find out how his First Term has been and the hopes he has for the progress of the democratic Institution.

How has the first term as Speaker been?

The first term of 2018 has been tough but we managed to sail through the rough times. After the transition period, the NA went straight to work with the President's message on the "State of the Nation", followed by reactions from the Members and, for 17 sittings, we worked tirelessly to keep up with the business of the House while at the same time consolidating the secretariat. We did well thanks to the sheer determination of all staff.

What do you hope to achieve during your Speakership?

During my Speakership I want to build a strong, efficient, professional and impartial Secretariat that will serve 'all MNAs' and the public equally. On this note I must congratulate all the MNAs for the work they are doing and for raising the standard of debates in the Chamber. They are really committed in discharging their oversight role as representatives of the people and my role is to make sure we maintain this standard.

“ We need to educate our youths on the core role and mandate of the National Assembly. ”

What do you think could be done to promote Parliament to the Youths?

We need to educate our youths on the core role and mandate of the National Assembly. We should be targeting them through other programs to get them interested in the work of the various Committees to keep them informed on the extra responsibilities of MNAs.

What do you regard as the most important values that the National Assembly should continue upholding?

The National Assembly should continue to play a very proactive role in the new political environment, but should also continue to uphold the values of professionalism and respect at all times.

Interview with the Deputy

Speaker

Hon. Ahmed Afif was sworn in as Deputy Speaker on the 6th March 2018.

Parlman caught up with him to find out how the First Term has been in his new role.

How has the first term as Deputy Speaker been?

It has been intense and certainly as far as I'm concerned it has been a learning curve especially in the new role as the Deputy Speaker. I have had to get to grips with matters to do with the secretariat as well as get familiarized with the Standing Orders and general Assembly Rules. That of course being in addition to the normal work of any Member which for this term has been quite challenging and as usual interesting.

You're the first Deputy Speaker in the history of the National Assembly to be a Muslim. How important is diversity and what value does it bring to the institution?

I think that as someone from a Muslim background I believe that it is an indication once again of the diversity of our culture and also shows a measure of representation that people of all faiths have a place in all national institutions. It think it is all the more important in such an institution because that is the forum for debate generally in the country and by having such discussions done through people with as varied background as possible one can only lift the quality of views and diversity of views across the country.

What would you say are the most important achievements of the National Assembly thus far?

I think the most important achievements are to raise the bar in terms of the oversight role that the Assembly plays vis a vis the government. To bring to the forefront many wide arranging and often opposing views to that of the Executive, which has been noticeably absent for a long time. And then to create a new culture of openness and transparency that can only improve the manner in which all institutions function and promote better use of public funds.

How do you balance your role as Deputy Speaker with your role as an MNA for the district of Anse Etoile?

I do not find the responsibilities to be over daunting. The role of the Deputy Speaker is very much restricted to the Institution itself and certain administrative functions related thereto.

My role as the MNA has not changed despite my position as Deputy Speaker and I continue to exercise that function with dedication despite all the constraints, including time, which are often binding - on all of us MNAs. Being a small institution with precious few resources our responsibilities are not made any lighter given that our job also entails research, report writing, travel and other responsibilities which keep us busy invariably busy throughout the year, including recess.

Interview with Hon. Philip Arissol

Hon. Philip Arissol was sworn in as the new Member for the District of Anse Boileau on the 6th March 2018. In this interview he talks about how the First Term has been and his plans for the Second Term.

How has the First Term been as the new Member for the District of Anse Boileau?

It has been a great experience because after 35 years of working in Broadcasting this line of work is something very new and I have learnt a lot so far. Having a great team, the LDS Team supporting me has made things easier and has enabled me to really settle in.

In my district there are quite a lot of issues especially concerning the youth being involved in drugs and as an MNA it's something that is very prominent to tackle not only on a District level but also on a national level. Land for farming and not getting enough financial assistance; fishermen not getting facilities; not having a fish and vegetable market are all issues that impact Anse Boileau and that I am trying to find ways to tackle. Those are big challenges, all in all it's been three months since I have sworn in and I am doing the best that I can and I'm getting along quite well.

What has been your most memorable experience so far?

The day I swore in was the most memorable experience for me. That day was also the State of the Nation Address and was the time I first spoke in the National Assembly. Being in the Assembly and listening to the State of the Nation right there was an incredible experience and even to then reply on behalf of my district to bring forward the impact it would have was a special moment.

How did you feel on the day that you took the Oath?

It was very emotional. I was happy and it's a giant step from where I was before. It's something new and challenging and there's a lot of work to do. All in all it was emotional but exciting at the same time.

What do you look forward to in the Second Term?

I will try and see if I can get support for a Motion on education – to introduce non-academic subjects at S4 and S5 level within business, farming, carpentry, design and other related fields to expand career opportunities for young people.

In my District I want to address the housing issues, as well as issues farmers are facing with lack of access to water and the roads. To add to that, would like to see how the secondary roads can be built and improved, as well as the repairing of roads at Anse Boileau.

WELCOME TO THE PARLIAMENTARY REPORTING UNIT

KNOW MORE ABOUT THE WORK OF PARLIAMENTARY REPORTING

The Parliamentary Reporting Unit have very important duties to undertake. Their main duties are to transcribe the National Assembly verbatim, proof-read, edit and make it available to the public via our website.

The staff also have Chamber duties which include taking the Ministers into the Chamber and also recording all the proceedings of all the Sittings.

Parliamentary documents such as verbatim and summary reports of plenary sessions and committee meetings are fundamental records of the legislature. The timely availability of these reports for Members of Parliament and the public have become essential for achieving greater parliamentary transparency and accountability, as well as efficiency in the law-making process.

Many of us access the verbatim on the National Assembly website but are probably not very sure on how they get there in the first place.

All Verbatims are published on our website and can be readily made available to the public by request however it's important to remember that the Parliamentary Reporting Unit require sufficient time to type the Verbatim and Proof Read before making it public.

Mrs Florette Dufresne, the Principal Parliamentary Reporter, Mona Soopramanian, Anessa Pool, Nasha Camille and Mureille Quilindo work hard to make sure Parliamentary Proceedings are recorded and available for the Public, the Members and the Governmental Departments.

COMMITTEE WORK

Committees are set up under Article 104 of the Constitution, which provides the National Assembly with the powers to create Committees, which is one of the main mechanisms that the institution uses to foster good governance, transparency and accountability. A large part of the work of the Members of the National Assembly takes place in these very Committees that are constitutionally empowered; where policy issues are considered, the work and expenditure of the Government is analysed and proposals for legislation examined and investigated. The Committees are central to the oversight role of the institution and are mandated to carry out a given function and then report back to the House with recommendations and findings.

The Committee aims to encourage, advocate and empower women and girls in society.

During the First Term they participated in a few visits and meetings. They made their first activity of 2018 a visit to the Perseverance Hospital on the 8th March 2018 on the occasion of International Women's Day and got the opportunity to interact with the patients and staff. The aim of the visit was to learn more about the service provided and the facilities available.

On the 6th April 2018 they met with officers from the Poverty Alleviation and Agency for Drug Abuse & Rehabilitation with the purpose of learning more about what they have achieved, the challenges faced and the targets and vision for the way forward to fulfilling their mandate. The alarming statistics of issues that was captured from surveys opened an interesting debate during discussions on how to change the trend and mindset of society thus getting the government to touch base on the core of the issues. The participants present strongly weighed up that it is vital to define "one-stop shop" in having all stakeholders on board instead of each working in isolation. The dire need for restructuring and developing the targeted program was highlighted, as well as monitoring and following up were all ideas brought up for the way forward. Henceforth, it was mutually agreed by the participants to work jointly on different projects and forums to make a positive impact and bring about changes.

The Committee also met with Miss Seychelles and Miss Seychelles Plus separately on different dates during the month of April. The main aim was to learn more about their project and plans for the duration of their mandate. It was decided that a meeting will be set with both the Misses, to work on a project as a team intended towards inspiring the women and girls in the society.

Going forward the Committee anticipate to shore up its relationship with the community and further understand the pertinent issues affecting the lives of women, girls and children in society and bring out the matters that affect the targeted group to the forefront of the legislative platform.

Legal Corner

QUESTION:

'At the moment I believe there are no laws in Seychelles to protect the citizens nor acceptability measures in place from social media, cyber bullying, online fraud, online verbal abuse, online sexual harassment, copyright framework etc . Legally is it possible to Re-examine our current constitution, the laws & copyright framework if we have any. To confirm as to whether it applies to the digital age we live in? If not then what are the procedures the citizens and constitutional bodies can take to ensure this changes happens.' From Youth & Students for Peace - Seychelles

ANSWER: This question raises a very pertinent issue. Social media can be a grey area, where people who want to do ill to others can do so from the relative safety of their homes, and often anonymously. While there are no laws which specifically prevent online bullying, fraud, harassment and other abuse, or which protect victims, this does not mean that there are no laws at all. The very same laws which prevent illegal and abusive behaviour in real life also prevent it online. If a person is bullied, abused, harassed or defamed, or a fraud is perpetrated online, the laws of Seychelles will step in and take action against the perpetrator in the same way they would if the same thing had occurred on the street, or in a newspaper. Where the law does not reach is in the realms of anonymity.

Fake profiles allow a person to act illegally while hiding behind a profile which does not exist in reality. This is where laws might need updating. It could provide for penalties for illegal activity online as well as offline. As for fake profiles what an updated law can do is to make the administrators of sites responsible for allowing their sites or platforms to be used for illegal or abusive activities.

Citizens and other interested bodies are encouraged to lobby their MNAs to bring about laws that affect them and bring forward the challenges currently at the forefront.

What is a Mace?

The Mace is the Symbol of the Speakers' authority and impartiality. It is carried into the Chamber by the Sergeant at Arms, who is the custodian of the Mace.

In the National Assembly of Seychelles the Mace is placed upright in a special wooden stand on the Speakers' own right. By Convention, the Assembly cannot proceed unless the Mace is present in the Chamber.

The National Assembly Mace is made of 'Bwa Nwar' and at the top of the Mace is an open book which represents the Constitution of Seychelles with the Preamble engraved on it. The open book rests on a Coco De Mer which in turn rests on a drum like wooden bust with the crest of Seychelles engraved on the front. The Mace of the National Assembly was designed and built by Mr. Colin Dyer a former Member.

Spotlight On The INTER-PARLIAMENTARY UNION

The National Assembly is involved in many diverse international activities. Through exchanges and participation in international parliamentary forums, the National Assembly looks to strengthen relations with other Parliaments; to support democratic processes; and to contribute to underpinning the role of parliament.

The National Assembly of Seychelles formally became a member of the Inter Parliamentary Union (IPU) during its 122nd General Assembly held in Bangkok, Thailand from the 27th of March to 1st April, 2010 following a resolution adopted by the Governing Council of the Inter- Parliamentary Union.

The Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU) is a unique organization made up of National Parliaments from around the world, including the National Assembly. They protect and build global democracy through political dialogue and concrete action.

They currently have 178 Member Parliaments and 12 Associate Members. They work closely with the United Nations and other partner organizations whose goals they share. Today, they are the organization that most closely reflects world public opinion. More than 6.5 billion of the world's 7 billion people live in states whose parliaments are members of the IPU—and it is their elected representatives who engage in and steer their policies. By bringing parliaments together, they bring people together.
